

PIPELINERS WANT TO KNOW

Pipeline operators are committed to engaging with local communities and being good neighbors.

Community Relationships

Pipelines traveling across the region mean relationships are needed across its communities.

Long-Term Relationship

A community's need for energy, to heat homes and fuel vehicles, is long term. So, pipeline operators know they will have a long-term relationship with the community.

Sharing with the Community

Pipeline operators share information with residents along the route describing the pipeline and how to work together to keep the pipeline safe.

Listening to the Community

Pipeline operators want to engage with the community to listen to concerns and have conversations about the pipeline and the role it plays in the community.
